GREEK MAN OF THE YEAR SELECTED

MISSOULA--

Kevin Kolendich, a junior at The University of Montana-Missoula, was selected by the All Greek, Interfraternity and Panhellenic councils as the 1998 Greek Man of the Year.

Kolendich, of Billings, is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. His involvement in the Greek, campus and Missoula communities was a deciding factor in his selection. He has held offices ranging from recruitment chair of the Interfraternity Council to philanthropy chair of Sigma Nu.

On campus, Kolendich is the president of the Pre-Health Sciences Club and has worked with Peer Advising and the Center for Leadership Development.

With a 3.95 grade-point average, Kolendich is among the top 10 percent of UM students academically. His outstanding academic performance has allowed him to become a member of the Greek honor society -- Order of Omega -- the Golden Key National Honor Society and Phi Kappa Phi honor society.

Kolendich also finds time to work in the community. He has been a Camp Mak-A-Dream counselor, Special Olympics volunteer and Little Guy Wrestling coach.

In his application for Greek Man of the Year, he wrote, "Seeing the difference I can make in the life of others through a few simple actions is what makes volunteering worthwhile."

Kolendich plans to become a physician specializing in pediatrics, family practice, emergency medicine or oncology.
